

I am writing in support of Indiana's Privacy Law. It has added quality to my homelife. I was so frustrated with the unsolicited calls from sloicitors that I considered getting an unlisted phone number. The calls normally came at meal time and often when we answered there is no one there - it is a computer call that someone else answered before us. We didn't count the calls before we placed our names on the "no-call list" and don't count them now. I do know, however, that we have much more peace in our own home in the evenings! I think that to again allow some of those calls would be an invasion of my privaacy!
